More Invaluable Resources for Genealogy Research

ProQuest Historical Newspapers™

Research a topic from every angle, across time and geography. With more than 150 historical titles dating back to the 1700s, ProQuest Historical Newspapers is the definitive newspaper archive empowering researchers to travel back through centuries and become eyewitnesses to history.

Historical newspapers supplement public records and provide information not recorded anywhere else. Every issue – reproduced cover-to-cover, in full-page digital image – helps researchers uncover birth and death notices, marriage announcements, business ads and classifieds, shipping and port information, legal and police notices, real estate records, and so much more. Plus, the comprehensive coverage lets researchers learn even more about their ancestor's lives by placing them in the context of the world and times in which they lived.

ProQuest Black Historical Newspapers

Bring a unique cultural perspective to events that shaped the 20th century. Written by and for African Americans, these titles gave voice to the people, culture, politics, business, art, and other significant issues in those communities that was often excluded or marginalized in mainstream sources. Black newspapers bring a wealth of unique and invaluable information about black family history, local history and much more. The content, including articles, obituaries, photos, editorials, and more, is easily accessible for scholars in the study of the history of race relations, journalism, local and national politics, education, African American studies, and many multidisciplinary subjects.

Examine major movements from the Harlem Renaissance to Civil Rights, and explore everyday life as written in the Atlanta Daily World, The Baltimore Afro American, Chicago Defender, Cleveland Call & Post, Los Angeles Sentinel, Michigan Chronicle, New York Amsterdam News, The Norfolk Journal & Guide, The Philadelphia Tribune, Pittsburgh Courier.

ProQuest Jewish Newspapers

Jewish immigration exploded in the early 20th century as two million Eastern European Jews fled their homeland into the United States in search of labor. As Jews helped transform American culture, so too, America transformed Jewish thought and reformed their religious practice. Each of the American Jewish Newspapers enables researchers to investigate the rise of Zionism and the formation of U.S. policies toward the state of Israel.

With four titles available to choose from, The American Hebrew & Jewish Messenger, The Jewish Advocate, The American Israelite, and Jewish Exponent enables researchers to investigate Jewish immigration, genealogy, history and so much more.

Digital Sanborn Maps

Provides digital access to 660,000 large-scale maps of American towns and cities, searchable by city and year. Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps are the most frequently consulted maps in public and academic libraries. Founded in 1867 by D. A. Sanborn, the Sanborn Map Company was the primary American publisher of fire insurance maps for nearly 100 years. The maps were originally compiled to help insurers assess the value of property, identify risk factors, and underwrite losses. These maps contain detailed data such as building outlines, size, use, construction details, and function of structures.

Recording a century of change, Digital Sanborn Maps are valuable historical tools for urban and social historians, architects, city planners, genealogists, local historians, and anyone else who needs to know more about the history, growth, and development of American cities, towns, and neighborhoods by pinpointing the streets, landmarks, and other places noted in the map's index.

Combined with other reference sources, such as city directories, photographs, small-scale maps, census records, genealogies, and statistical data, Digital Sanborn Maps provide an unparalleled picture of life in American towns and cities.
